Let Wood Overlay Garage Doors Make A Statement of Your Good Taste!

The first thing passers-by and guests see at your home is the vast expanse of a boring 3-car garage door, but you can easily change their perception of your home just by changing your garage door! A luxury custom-designed wood overlay door can make a statement about your good taste while increasing your curb appeal.

Homeowner associations are increasingly requiring wood garage doors to create an upscale look to their neighborhoods, while many homeowners are simply choosing to upgrade from standard steel tract home doors to custom wood overlay carriage-style doors to create their own look.

Besides adding a touch of classy elegance to your driveway or courtyard, custom cedar overlay doors extend the drama of your entryway and enhance the overall beauty of your home's exterior. Each door combines the strength of steel with the aesthetics of classic carriage house design.

The entire process is a matter of making a call to an experienced garage door company and asking them to visit your home to discuss a new or replacement door. They will bring you photos and brochures, options and references, and will be able to advise you on the best door style and design to complement your home's exterior.

After making your selections, ask for a written estimate for the total custom door and installation, including a garage door opener if you need a new one.

The garage doors are designed to provide lasting, trouble-free service with springs and a heavy-duty track, galvanized to protect against rust and carefully constructed for durability.

Amarr doors offer an alternative to custom wood garage doors, the Classica 3000 a 2-sided steel insulated carriage house door with Durasafe pinch resistant technology. Classica doors are available in four basic designs with a choice of 9 different top sections. These designs are inspired by authentic carriage house door designs and are constructed of 24 gauge steel. Classica garage doors provide great looks and less maintenance at an affordable price.
